WHEN: WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 30 7 PM

WHAT: SONGS and ROCK AND ROLL THERAPIST

Paul McMahon will appear as the Rock'n'Roll Therapist and sing original songs at the Emily Harvey Foundation. Linda Mary Montano will perform as his double. McMahon is an eclectic creator with a long history, in and out of the art world, continually writing and singing songs since the late 70s. He's released 10 albums and around 100 of his songs can be found on youtube, Spotify, iTunes, CDBaby and other sites including paulmcmahon.tv.

His songs run the gamut from pure pop to mindblown ruminations on the implicate order of perceptual reality. He left the city for shamanic exploration in the 1990s which led to Interfaith ordination in 1996 and adoption at a Lakota sundance in 1999. Studying with rainmakers and lightning callers, his art and songs trace changes in his thinking as it became more interdimensional. A dedicated Goddess worshipper he has raised twin daughters who are now 15 in Woodstock.

Paul has written some of the most beautiful love songs of our times and he can sing them with tenderness, passion and humor. He is simply one of my favorite singers and songwriters and performers alive today. Without Paul McMahan's songs in my life the world would really be a dark and difficult place.

Sharon Gannon, co-founder Jivamukti Yoga School

In 2007 Linda Montano began performing as Paul McMahan, complete with facial hair; at first alone, lip-synching to his recordings and then beside him as he sings. He considers it a great honor to be among those this venerable artist has personified; Bob Dylan, Mother Theresa and her father. Linda Montano is a beloved and trailblazing feminist art saint. She was swamified by Shri Brahmananda Sarasvati but has since renounced and is currently thinks of herself as a Catholic nun.
